

PRINTABLE TWO

Prioritizing Per Your Goals & Budget

Here are a few ways to prioritize where you want to spend money in your room. Use them to examine your goals and decide where your time and money will be better spent.

1 | Brainstorm to pin down what it is that you want to accomplish most. You can circle any options provided and list your own. Use the back of this sheet if you run out of space.

- |                                    |  |
|------------------------------------|--|
| Modernize the look                 | Increase visual flow to adjoining spaces |
| Increase re-sale value             | Change style altogether                  |
| Better coordinate existing items   | Set the stage for more changes later     |
| Add warmth to the space            | Establish a pulled-together look         |
| Get organized                      | Create zones for multiple uses           |
| Get more function out of the space | Keep large pieces & re-accessorize       |

2 | Think about your budget & evaluate these possible ways to maximize it:

Strategy 1: Base your space on a statement piece. Plan to spend the most money on this one item and buy the remaining items at the lowest price possible without sacrificing appropriate quality.

Strategy 2: Use wall color for visual impact. Paint is the least expensive way to make a large impact in your space. Get help from RFRA to choose an on-trend color palette so that you have the most options at discount stores for furnishings and accessories.

Strategy 3: Use mostly items you already have. Get help from RFRA to plan DIY projects that you can complete on your own at minimal cost. You can also borrow under-used items from other rooms in your house and repurpose them with RFRA's help.

Strategy 4: Blend any of these strategies together.
